With the inclusion of new features, you can finally get access to Smart Objects which allows us to use the shape layers to access any object and apply all the layers to it. This is a feature in Photoshop that has been out one the scene for a few years now, however you have to manually place these layers. Now with the Smart Objects feature, you can just simply drag a new layer onto a smart object, move it around the image, and anything you do to that layer will automatically apply to the underlying layer. This is great for applying various backgrounds onto an object such as a person. Simply drag on a background layer, and it will automatically create a smart object and apply the layers. HDR options, bokeh modes, adjustment layers, warp layers, and just about everything that would make a regular layer, also make a smart object. This allows us to further manipulate our images without having to navigate through a lot of menus. To edit the image editor in Photoshop save and open edits to a newly created layer along with the standard layers. To do this simply hold the alt key on your keyboard and click '+', '>' or 'Shift+Alt+Ctrl+Delect' on your keyboard to save. This saves the layer under the name you have given to it. Instead of using the standard layers, you can also use adjustment layers which are created from an adjustment in Photoshop. These are layers that adjust the brightness, contrast, colors, etc of the image. Finally, you can also use a cloning brush to edit the color or luminance of the image by simply clicking on the image and dragging the brush. e3d0a04c9c
